State Alcohol-Related Laws During the COVID-19 Emergency for On-Premises and Off-Premises Establishments as of January 1, 2022

Our latest Digest represents a milestone. For the first time since the COVID-19 pandemic started in 2020, bars and restaurants in all 50 states and the District of Columbia (DC) are allowed to be open without statewide emergency rules for capacity, hours, food with alcohol, or service of alcohol outdoors only.

Although the pandemic is still ongoing, the states and DC have moved away from business restrictions to focus on masks and vaccines. New York and Rhode Island issued orders waiving mask requirements in establishments that require proof of COVID-19 vaccination for entry. Before ending capacity restrictions, Hawaii briefly waived the restrictions for bars and restaurants in counties that required proof of vaccination or a negative test. Starting January 15, DC will require proof of vaccination against COVID-19 to enter bars, restaurants, nightclubs, taverns, breweries, wineries and distillery tasting rooms.

Three states recently implemented new alcohol delivery laws. In Alabama and Montana, new state laws went into effect allowing bars and restaurants to deliver alcoholic beverages. A new Arizona law allows bars and liquor stores to start selling cocktails for takeout and delivery, and lets restaurants apply to sell either alcoholic beverages in the original packaging or cocktails for takeout and delivery.

Tennessee and Mississippi ended their public health emergencies in November, but both states had already ended business restrictions months earlier and continued the emergency orders to facilitate health care. Hawaii ended its statewide COVID-19 business restrictions on December 1, and delegated the decision for any such future orders to counties, while maintaining a public health emergency relating to vaccinations and travel. Alabama, Arkansas and Missouri had issued new public health emergency orders focused on health care after the original emergency orders ended, and those new orders have now ended.

The Digest contains a narrative of COVID-19 alcohol policies throughout the pandemic, with links to sources in Table 3. The policies are coded in the companion Dataset. Policy changes over time are displayed in our series of maps in the Digest and in the "Policy Changes Since 1-1-2020" tab in the Dataset. The table below shows the currently known expiration dates of the original COVID-19 public health emergency orders.

2021 Expiration Dates of COVID-19 Public Health Emergencies

Notes: Alaska ended its state of emergency twice, on 2/14 and 4/30. A Michigan Supreme Court decision in October 2020 ended the governor's ability to issue public health emergency orders, but the state public health department was allowed to continue issuing pandemic-related orders and restrictions on businesses. Tennessee ended statewide business restrictions on May 31, 2021, and continued its emergency order with a limited scope focusing on health care until November 19, 2021. Mississippi ended statewide business restrictions on August 15, 2021, and continued a limited emergency order for accessing resources until November 20, 2021.

About the Digest

This review documents alcohol-related policies adopted at the state level during and in response to the COVID-19 pandemic across all 50 states and the District of Columbia. The Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) declared a public health emergency in response to COVID-19 on January 31, 2020, under section 319 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 247d). The President of the United States proclaimed that the COVID-19 outbreak in the United States constitutes a national emergency beginning March 1, 2020. The States then also began to declare emergencies and established various orders in response. This review focuses on policies affecting the availability of beverage alcohol during the emergency. Coding relies on multiple official sources of information, including official websites and press releases for state governors, alcohol beverage control agencies, departments of revenue, commerce, and health; state executive orders and proclamations; and state statutes and regulations. Although this review seeks to capture policies specific to the COVID-19 context, these policies may expand upon or remain consistent with policies that were already in place. Where possible, preexisting law has been noted. The “Last Updated” date represents the latest date through which policy changes have been tracked for each state. If research reveals significant changes occurring after the “Last Updated” date, these changes are noted in italics in the table.

Four variables are coded for On-Premises Establishments (TABLE 1):

1. Whether they are open for on-premises consumption (also depicted in MAPs & CHARTs);
2. Whether they are allowed to sell alcohol for takeout or curbside pickup;
3. Whether they are allowed to deliver alcohol to consumers’ homes; and, if so,
4. Whether they are allowed to deliver alcohol to consumers’ homes without first obtaining a delivery permit.

Three variables are coded for Off-Premises Establishments (TABLE 2):

1. Whether they are open;
2. Whether they are deemed an “Essential Business” by the state; and,
3. Whether they are allowed to deliver alcohol to consumers’ homes.

The open status for On-Premises Establishments is coded according to the categories described in our corresponding Maps, Dataset and Codebook. The remaining variables had one of five answers: “YES” (that state met the variable); “NO” (that state did not meet the variable); “UNCLEAR” (it was not clear from the states’ laws whether it met that variable); “NOT SPECIFICALLY NOTED” (the state law did not address the variable one way or another); and “N/A” (that variable was not applicable – e.g. if the state did not allow delivery, then it could not require a permit for delivery and would be coded “N/A”). Some states had very little written on their official websites. Other states did not list an enactment or sunset date for the law / regulation / proclamation / executive order. No date included on the table means that there was no date listed.

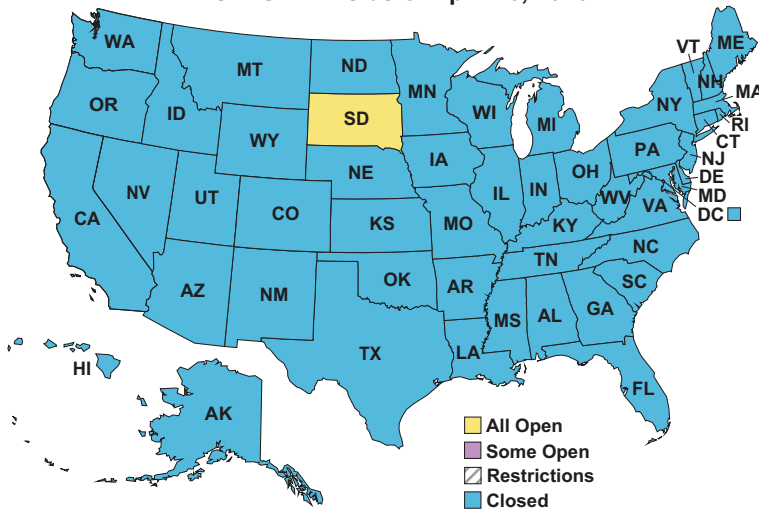

Sources used for all coding are displayed in TABLE 3.

Disclaimer: The information in this Digest is not intended as legal advice and should be used for information and research purposes only. Consult with the relevant state authorities if you have specific questions about their policies. This Digest focuses on policies issued at the state level by all 50 states (and the comparable level for the District of Columbia). State policies are continually changing as the COVID-19 situation evolves, with new orders, restrictions and regulations issued almost daily from many sources including governors, state health departments, and state alcohol licensing boards. In addition, state websites sometimes remove prior documents or overwrite previous versions of documents or web pages, making it difficult to verify policy changes. For these reasons, we cannot guarantee the accuracy, completeness or timeliness of the data presented in this Digest.
